

Veto Pro Pac Has It All!

By Chuck Siebuhr

Those that have been in the industry for some time have seen innumerable changes, many of them positive and some not quite so positive. Often, some of the more positive ones are given less recognition than they deserve. We've seen the introduction of countless new products and many refinements to existing ones. Last month's award went heartily to Veto Pro Pac for one of the most innovative and practical (and desirable) products that we have seen in a very long time.

If ever a product was designed with the "working" technician in mind, this is surely it. Having had the good fortune to receive the Veto Pro Pac for evaluation, it proves to be all that it is claimed to be, and more! I immediately loaded it with all of my commonly used tools of the trade, including the handy "D" Ring for the butt-set. Most of these tools can be awkward to carry around and even harder to organize in any sensible fashion. Not only did they all fit, but they are organized in such a well thought out way that there is no fumbling around for even the smallest item. And, I still have room for more.

Several years ago I left "the tools" after a long history of installation and repair, but I wish I had had one of these when I was actually performing the work. To say it is rugged, durable and so extremely logical in its design is an understatement. It's one of those things that make you say "Why didn't I think of that?"

Every technician I know is going to want one of these, for sure. Five full stars for Veto Pro Pac for an award that is truly well-deserved!
